Affirmative Vote Expected Thursday On Consolidating Two Municipalities

The Joint Municipal Consolidation Study Commission has nailed down one plank in the platform it will send to the voters this fall — the form of government it recommends in a consolidated Princeton — and has tacked down two others.

It has been clear from the last several meetings that the Commission had reached a consensus that it would recommend consolidation of Borough and Township, but a formal vote has not yet been taken. A vote is expected to be a primary order of business when the Commission meets this Thursday at 7:30 in Borough Hall. Another formal vote is expected on the manner of electing council representatives in the council form of government — identical to the present Borough Council — that the Commission approved last week.

Convening on Tuesday and Thursday of last week, the Commission spent the first meeting in a continued discussion of the "weak" as opposed to the strong mayor-council form. A straw vote the previous week had indicated that the Commission was divided 5-4 as to which was best for Princeton and that one member, Peter Bearse, was enough of two minds himself so that he abstained.

Jay Bleiman presented views from two professional administrators in North Plainfield and South Brunswick whom he had interviewed by telephone. Both had experience with both forms, and both ranked the ordinance administrator in the borough-council form as preferable to the business manager in the Faulkner mayor-council form. In their view, the business manager is too subject to the whim of the strong mayor and to being replaced every time a new mayor is elected.

"When one talks of efficiency in delivering municipal services," he said, "it is the administrator that is the key." Mr. Bleiman added that although he thought both forms would work for Princeton, he feels the potential for abuse is greater in the Faulkner form, which also brings into being a new form and new lines of communication. "I think we should do what we are accustomed to, and that is better for us."

Still of two minds on the strong features of the Faulkner method which he would like to see incorporated in the borough form, Mr. Bearse cast his vote for the latter, based, he said, on the League of Women Voters' recommendation. "Any decision in government is based on limited knowledge," he sighed before voting.

Immediately after the vote, Harry Sayen, chairman of the committee on government that had recommended the Faulkner form, moved to make the vote unanimous. Arthur Morgan, a former Borough Councilman who had opposed the borough form as being "wildly inefficient" seconded his motion, which was passed unanimously.

Two nights later, Mr. Sayen opened the discussion on the election of council members by wards or at-large by saying that although 16 members of his committee on possible forms of government had felt

Gas Lines Grow Longer, Tempers Shorter, But End Is Not Yet in Sight

Obviously, it wasn't working. Not yet anyway. Despite the odd-even program that went into effect Thursday to shorten gas lines, for the first five days here, they were longer than ever.

Some service station operators were guessing it would take two to three weeks before the situation would stabilize and the lines begin to shrink. Elsewhere, there were reports of violence, but not in Princeton.

"The lines have been long but controllable," commented Township Police Chief Frederick Porter. "A few people have been emotionally disturbed over the situation, but nothing extreme has happened to be upset about," continued Chief Porter. "Those visiting stations in the Township have been taking the situation in stride."

There have been rumblings from service station owners about closing to protest existing profit guidelines and gasoline allocations, but John Gianacaci, whose father, Constant operates the Gulf Station on Nassau Street and who is head of the Mercer County Gasoline Retailers Assn. said Tuesday that he hasn't heard of any imminent strike plans.

For some, the gas shortage has brought an abundance of business. Jay Mironov of Jay's Cycle, 249 Nassau Street, estimated 400 customers visited his store on Saturday. He sold approximately 100 bikes last week. "Repairs," he added, "are out of sight."

Heretofore empty bicycle racks around town are beginning to fill up. On Tuesday, the busiest day in TOWN TOPIC's publication schedule, there were more bicycles and motorcycles than cars in its parking yard.

206 Hardware sold 216 5-gallon gas cans last week—every one it had. "I'm out of everything...Gas cans, siphons, and plastic tubing," reported owner Mike Stachowicz.

Irv Urken of Urken Supply Company on Witherspoon Street, who viewed the gas shortage as a mixed blessing (it will keep people shopping locally) reported that he had sold everything but one-gallon cans—"and they're not interested in those."

He cautioned buyers to beware of the danger of escaping fumes from cans. "They are literally playing with fire." The fumes are what catch fire.

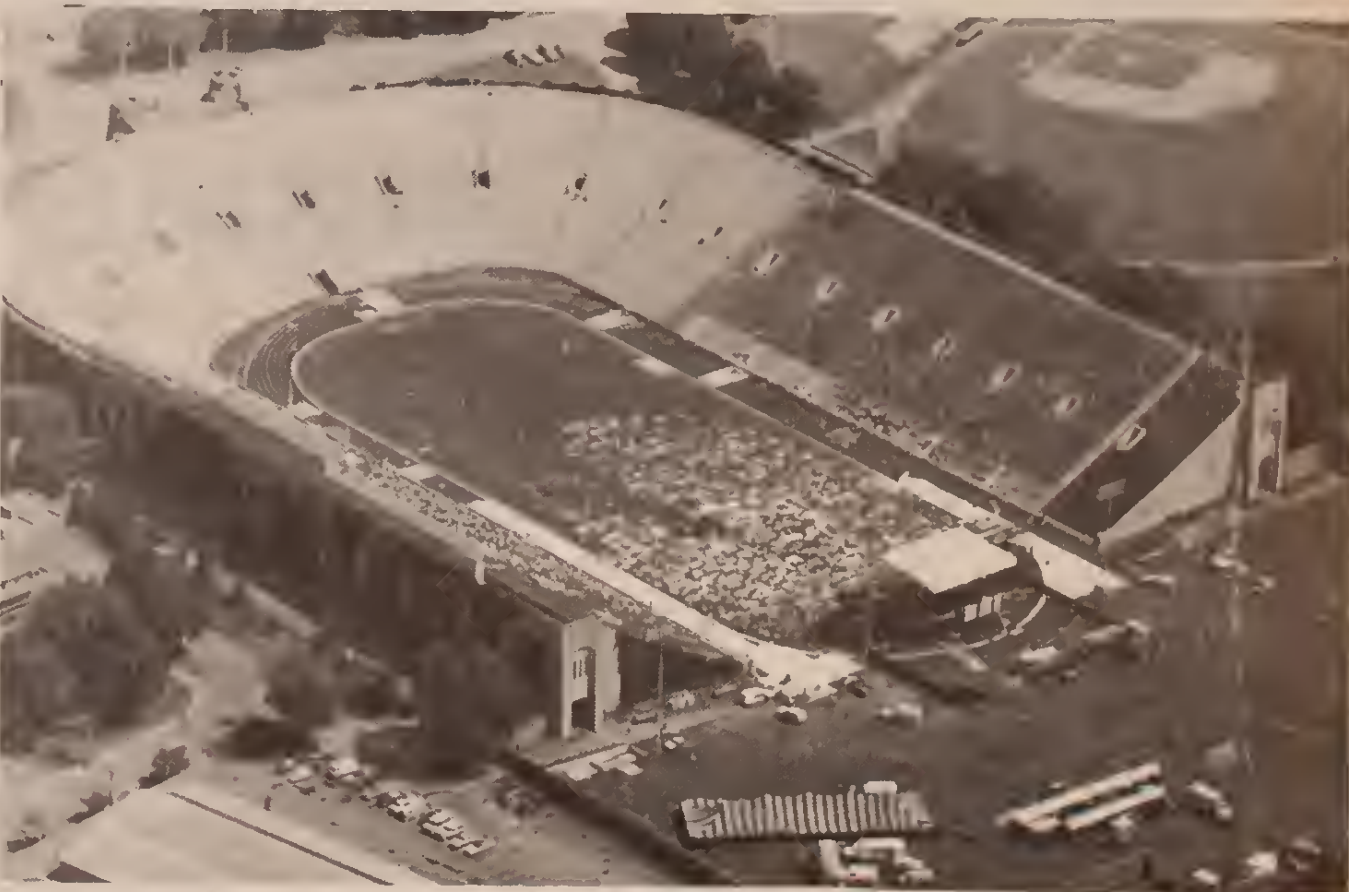

Those keeping cans of gas around should be sure to place them in a well-ventilated place, he said. If possible, they should be kept outside.

"People should ask themselves if it is worth the risk of having their house burn down to get gas."

Township police were visiting service stations Tuesday informing them of a new Department of Energy regulation limiting one gallon to a can.

There were more parking spaces in town. Martin Lombardo Sr., the Palmer Square lot attendant, estimated that parking was down at least 20 percent. "It's always filled more than this," he said. "Look at the streets: it's never been this empty. The United States had better wake up!"

Stations List Hours for Pumping Gas

Princeton's service stations have attempted to stagger the hours when they are open so that drivers will have some choice when they look for gas during the day. They have announced these times—in most cases, Monday through Friday:

Exxon-Nassau St.	9-12 noon
Gulf-Nassau St.	11-2
Mobil-Nassau St.	7-10 a.m.
Sunoco-Nassau St.	6-9 a.m. 1-6 p.m.
Amoco-Witherspoon St.	11-2 p.m.
Atlantic-Witherspoon St.	8-9:30 a.m.
Arco-Alexander St.	7-8 a.m.
Amoco-Bayard Lane	8-10:30 a.m.
Mobil-Bayard Lane	7-10 a.m.
Exxon-Bayard Lane	Out of Gas
Citgo-Pr. Shopping Center	8-10 a.m. 4-6 p.m. Closed Wednesdays
Phillips 66-Route 206	7-3 p.m.
William Penn-206 & 518	8-9:30 4:30-6
Texaco-206 & 518	7:30-9 a.m.

Hours are in effect, station owners stress, only as long as they have gas. They are subject to daily change, depending on supply. During weekends, motorists should check first to see if a station is pumping. The Citgo station in the Shopping Center ran out of gas Friday and will not re-open its pumps until July 2.

Gasoline Shortage

Just as a lot of bicycles are being bought, a number are being stolen. Township police report 28 taken since the first of June.

Borough police report bicycles stolen from Nassau Street, the Westminster choir College campus, Spelman Hall on the University campus and a moped from Cleveland Lane.

And one moped switch. A Parkside Drive resident told police that he parked his orange moped in front of a Hodge Road residence Monday and when he returned a short time later, he discovered it had been replaced with an older orange model of the same make that was out of gas. Police said they believe the latter was stolen from Olden Lane.

How to circumvent the shortage problems? Some tried to crash the gas lines (see Box). Others tried parking their cars in line early in the morning, leaving them

Gas Siphoning Returns But One Thief Gets Away with Haul of 2000 Gallons

Township police reported receiving ten complaints from residents of gas being siphoned from their cars last week and Borough police listed two such thefts but they all pale beside the 2,000 gallons stolen from Roy's Arco Station, 272 Alexander Street.

Police said that 1,000 gallons of unleaded and 1,000 of regular with a value of $1,600 were stolen between 5 Friday night and 8:30 Monday morning from underground storage tanks. A tanker had to be used to siphon the gas and haul it away, police said.

An employee at the station reported that the stolen gas represented most of its allotment for the rest of the month. The lock protecting the tanks was very small, he said, and would be easy to break open. He said the gas was probably taken Sunday morning around 8:30.

WHERE HAVE ALL THE CARS GONE? This Palmer Square street and Palmer Square parking lot are normally filled with cars, but this week, as a result of the gas shortage, there are plenty of spaces available.

and then returning when the line began to move.

A Divided Family. Marsha and Walter Anderson of 89 Moran Avenue, avid motorcyclists who like to take country rides, faced a problem with the odd-even system. One plate on one motorcycle was odd, the other even.

Since on most long trips they would both need to fill their small tanks, they feared that their tandem rides would be a casualty of the crisis. Their problem was solved when Mr. Anderson called the Division of Motor Vehicles and discovered that for a fee of $3.50 he could change his plate to correspond with his wife's.

Some tried humor. Anthony Matarese of Griggs Corner

American on Witherspoon Street placed a sign against his pumps that read: "Please do not refer gasoline-related complaints to us; instead, refer them to President Jimmy Carter, Secretary of Energy James Schlesinger and Amoco Oil Company." He listed a telephone number for each.

"It first started as a joke," he said. "Now I wish people would call. Most are willing to pay more so they don't have to wait in line -- and that's exactly what the gas companies want."

One Borough resident came up against it when to her horror, after waiting in line for more than an hour Tuesday, she discovered she had left her money at home. She was only two cars away

It's Not Enough to Wait in Line—Now Accidents Are Occurring There

Something new appeared in the police accident docket this week — gas line mishaps.

Magdalene G. Johnson of 144 John Street was charged with careless driving, after she allegedly tried to break into a gas line at the Princeton Shopping Center Friday morning.

After Ms. Johnson had told police there was no place for her to go and she wanted to get out of the intersection, she was contradicted by witnesses.

Several others in line told Ptl. Renn Kaminski that Ms. Johnson had waited at the shopping center entrance for a break in the line and then just ran into the rear of a car operated by Richard Steiner, 17, of 19 Marion Road East. They said that there was another lane open for her to use to go through the intersection.

William Krause of 104 Library Place and Margaret Mills of 46 Sturges Way were waiting in line at the Phillips 66 station on Route 206 last week when Robert Herder Jr. of 416-A Devereux attempted to pull in behind the Krause car.

Ptl. Peter Savalli reported that he had heard the rear tires of the Herder car squeal before it struck the Krause car in the rear and drove it into the Mills car.

Mr. Herder told him his gas pedal was stuck. Ptl. Savalli noted in his report, however, that he checked the pedal after the collision and it appeared normal. There were no charges.

from the pump.

Would the attendant take a check? No. Could she pay for it later? No. Luckily, she was able to borrow $5 each from two friends she spotted and get her gas. "That's one of the advantages of living in a small town!" she said.

Horror Stories Abundant. The shortage was all people could talk about. Everyone has his own horror story of waiting in line for stations that never opened or of having to wait three hours for $5 worth.

One store owner, only half jokingly, said that he had told one employee if he heard one more word about gas lines he was going to send him home.

At the Pennington Circle Mobil Station Friday night, attendants had to lock themselves inside the station to escape angry motorists when they closed down for the night with the "last car" line still strung out down the highway.

Hopewell Township police arrived and convinced the attendants to finish serving the line of cars. Police said the line, which formed at 4 in the afternoon, stretched for two miles at one point.

A North Brunswick resident was found dead on U.S. 1 Tuesday in a gas line, sitting in his car with the windows up and the motor running.

Some Well Supplied. Service stations here generally were struggling to keep open a brief

Like Other Alternate Means of Transportation, Loop Bus Finds Its Popularity Is Growing Fast

Remember the Loop Bus? All of a sudden a lot of people are asking about it. "I've gotten more calls in the last few days than I received in months before that," says Beth Kaplowitz, Loop Bus Coordinator who has discovered that a friend in need is a friend indeed. In these days of the gasoline crisis, she is more than willing to help--with personalized instructions on how to use the bus, and with suggestions on how residents can use the bus for their daily routine and save their precious gas for out of town business or weekend fun.

First, for those who do not remember, the Loop Buses are part of the Mercer Metro system. Some of the buses used for the loops are white with blue trim; others are bigger, orange and black models. All have a sign in the front window on the driver's side identifying either the inner or outer loop route.

For those who don't recall, the inner loop passes by the Shopping Center, Princeton Community Village, Redding Terrace, Terhune Road, Witherspoon Street, Paul Robeson Place, Bayard Lane, Nassau Street and Harrison Street.

Facts By Phone. The Outer Loop serves Princeton Community Village and Redding Terrace, the Shopping Center, Harrison Street, Franklin Avenue, Magnolia Lane, Dodds Lane, Kingston Road, Prospect Avenue, Riverside Drive, Sycamore Lane, Harrison Street, Nassau Street, past Palmer Square, University Place, Alexander Road, Lawrence Apartments, and out to Route 1 and the Mercer and Quaker Bridge malls.

Loop bus schedules are available on the buses themselves, as well as at more than a dozen Princeton locations (listed at the end of this article). For those who want more information, Ms. Kaplowitz is on call from 9 to 1 weekdays at 924-6162. The schedule, for example, shows both buses traveling between the intersection of Nassau and Harrison streets and Palmer Square. She can tell you that those buses also will stop at Princeton Avenue, Maple Street, St. Paul's Church (Moran Avenue) and Cox's.

Never on Sunday. The fare is 40 cents, exact change, please. Transfers are a nickel. Senior citizens with cards are charged 20 cents. Kids under five ride free. The bus stops are marked with blue and white tape. Neither bus runs on Sunday.

To use any form of mass transportation, Ms. Kaplowitz concedes, "You have to be motivated enough to inconvenience yourself slightly. But the Loop Bus may be a lot more convenient than most people realize."

Early bird schedules on each route allow people to get to many businesses or commuting locations in town well before 9 a.m. Someone from Redding Terrace, for example, could catch the inner loop bus at 7:47 and be at Palmer Square at 7:59. With the outer loop, a New York commuter living way out at Dodds Lane and Overbrook could board the bus at 7:56 and be at the Dinky station at 8:14. In the evening buses coming back stop at the railroad station at 6:23, 8:23, and 10:38 and are back on Dodds Lane just 14 minutes after that.

The round trip fare of 80 cents is less than the all-day parking fee--if you can find a spot.

Bus to the Movies. When the outer loop began circulating out to the shopping malls in May, it also expanded its evening service. "Princeton residents who live near the outer loop can take the bus to attend evening activities in town," says Ms. Kaplowitz. "For example, the 7:05 bus from Dodds Lane and Shadybrook arrives downtown at about 7:20. This allows ample time to attend an 8 o'clock movie such as McCarter's Summer Cinema series at Frick. The last return bus leaves Palmer Square at about 10:40 and leaves the last passengers at Dodds and Shadybrook at 10:52."

The transfer system raises all sorts of possibilities. The loop bus coordinator cites one: A parent living on Evergreen Circle off Riverside Drive hoping to take the kids to Community Park Pool can catch the outer loop bus at about 10:35, ride to the Shopping center, change for the inner loop, and arrive at Community Park at 11:14.

Schedules may be obtained at these locations: YMCA, library, all banks except the drive-ins, Township Hall, Borough Hall, information desk of the Medical Center, Cox's, Hinkson's, Suburban Transit, Redding Terrace, Princeton Community Village, Valley Road School (Tax Office and Recreation Department). TOWN TOPICS, Princeton Packet, Bamberger's customer service desk, churches on Nassau Street, and the Jewish Center. Schedules are also available at other stores in town and some doctors' offices.

CBD PLANS MOVE ON
Next Meeting July 9. The steering committee that has been wrestling with various proposals aimed at expanding and revitalizing Princeton's central business district met twice this past week, hoping to whittle down the 14 alternatives presented by the professional planners to three or four which will be presented in detail at a public meeting Monday, July 9, at 8 in Borough Hall.

"What we will be looking for at that time is public reaction," said Mayor Robert Cawley at his weekly press conference. "Based to a degree on that reaction, we will make a decision within the month as to which is the chosen alternative."

"This is the appropriate time for individuals or organizations with a particular point of view with respect to these alternatives to offer their opinions," said the mayor.

Planning for the central business district, which last year was set back by negative reaction to a proposed parking garage for 800 cars, now emphasizes community involvement at every turn. The mayor reiterated the invitation to the public and expressed hope that people attending the meeting will study each alternative beforehand.

The alternatives will be presented in detail in next week's TOWN TOPICS.

Garages Seem Likely. As the paper went to press this week, the Steering Committee had been presented with two recommendations from Venturi and Rauch, the planning consultants. These two, plus either one or two more, will almost certainly be included in the final round of alternatives.

Each of the final choices also can be expected to include proposals for one or, very possibly, more than one parking garage.

The alternatives suggested by Venturi and Rauch at last Thursday's meeting were dubbed "X" and "Y."

Alternative X would place the Princeton Community Housing project on the Witherspoon-Spring Street site where the garage had been proposed last year. It would plan for the expansion of Palmer Square by 140,000 square feet of office space, 54,800 square feet of retail and 80 hotel rooms. It also would anticipate the expansion of the library.

To accommodate the 1,287 parking spaces demanded by this proposed development, plus the 240 spaces estimated to be the current deficit in Princeton, alternative X would utilize a four-story garage at the Chambers Street south site, a two-story garage at Chambers Street north, and a five-story garage on the south side of Spring Street. The plan would also require 519 spaces in fringe parking areas.

PCH Outside CBD? Alternative Y would place the Princeton Community representation by wards would be the best, he now favored election from at-large. He thought there could be a problem finding a candidate from each party within a ward.

"I'm against wards," Borough Clerk Penny Carter told the Commission on her way to another meeting. "It's a misnomer to say wards help minorities — the neighborhoods in Princeton aren't large enough. Also it is a disservice to those who have served both Princetons so well over the years," she added.

Wards Are "Divisive." Nicholas Van Dyke remarked that "there was a touch of irony in fragmenting the community into four wards when we've been trying to go from two entities to one. Why draw and quarter it?" he asked. Or as Mr. Bleiman put it, "I wouldn't like to replace one line that divides us by three or four."

Mr. Bleiman also raised the question of sequence of voting. The borough council form calls for a mayor who serves for four years and six council members with terms of three years each. The terms of two council members would expire each year.

Disenfranchized. If there were three, four or five wards, Mr. Bleiman pointed out (all are possible under state law with various combinations of ward and at-large representation) there would always be a year in which at least one ward was not voting. "That doesn't sound like a good idea to me," he remarked.

Mr. Bleiman also had reservations about wards being as representative of the different groups within the community, particularly in Princeton where neighborhood groups aren't big enough to make up a homogeneous ward. He suggested that broad representation is the function of the political party and pointed out that the presence of the University, with its transient student body and historically low voter turn-out

Beware the Future

*The Fourth of July
Seems to mark a high Point in the summer.
We've been weather-lucky
Til now—the rest
May be a bummer!*

For the past two years, at least, June in these parts has been largely delightful: temperatures below normal and, save for the first few days, no overage of rain. Hard to believe, but outlying areas in Princeton have had early-morning readings barely above 50 on several occasions.

No immediate upsurge toward the virtually inevitable heat and humidity of mid-summer is on the horizon. It will be somewhat warmer, but not much more than 80, with skies generally fair into the weekend would be a difficult factor in creating wards.

Mr. Bearse, however, favored a mixture of wards and at-large representation and supported the League of Women Voters recommendation for four wards, one council member from each and two at-large, as easing the transition to a consolidated municipality. "They could provide the voter with a smaller area for voting to counterbalance the increase in size of the municipality," the League wrote in a report distributed to all Commission members.

"They could help preserve neighborhood identity and increase minority representation," the report continued. To these arguments Mr. Bearse, who was defeated in his bid for Congress, added the cost and difficulty of meeting people in an election campaign. "Candidates today are trying to provide more service and to react to the needs of their constituents," he said, suggesting that the smaller unit of the ward is an aid in this process.

League Has Mixed Views. Margaret Broadwater agreed with him and said she thought the fact that the ward is a smaller territory in which to campaign may counterbalance the difficulty of recruiting candidates mentioned by Mr. Sayen and confirmed by Mrs. Charlotte Gipson from her experience in Roselle. Mrs. Broadwater is also an advocate of accessibility in government.

The League also admitted to having second thoughts about its original recommendation. Rita Ludlum, League President, confessed, "We surprised ourselves with our statement, but we thought it might be easier to get consolidation passed." League member Betty Schrader brought up the possibility of gerrymandering in drawing the lines for wards. The political parties should have input, she suggested.

At the suggestion of Mrs. Gipson, an informal vote was taken to ascertain where each member stood. The vote was 8-2 for at-large representation, with Mr. Bearse and Mrs. Broadwater being the two who favored a mixture of ward and at-large election.

The discussion will continue this Thursday, and Mr. Bearse is expected to try to convince his colleagues of his views in order to persuade them to reverse their previous position.

Housing project outside the central business district, but otherwise would be based on the same expansion plans of Palmer Square and the library.

Under this alternative, garages would also have to be built on Chambers Street. A third garage on the Wither-spoon-Spring site would be needed to park 550 cars. Fringe parking would be needed for 375 cars.

The initial reaction of several steering committee members favored alternative X, though at least several more meetings will transpire, and many more comments will be heard, before any final choice is made.

RATE INCREASE SOUGHT
But Committee Objects. The Elizabethtown Water Company has applied to the Board of Public Utilities for an increase in rates for water service.

In a letter to Township Committee, the Company says it is requesting an increase of $5,743,000, more than half of which is to finance capital improvements and the remainder to offset higher costs for power, chemicals, labor and other increased expenses. The Company wants to construct another coagulation-sedimentation basin and associated sludge lagoon, the letter reports, to "assure normal treatment procedures and avoid serious problems in the event of unusually high demands for water."

"For a customer consuming 3,000 cubic feet (22,400 gallons each quarter -- the average consumption for residential customers), the increase will amount to 29 cents per week," wrote Chester A. Ring 3rd, executive vice-president of Elizabethtown. No date has been set for hearings, and the proposed rates do not become effective until approved by the Board of Public Utilities.

Township Committee members, many of whom have taken a particular interest in water quality problems, were irked and dismayed by the letter. "That's a disingenuous way of presenting it," said Hugo

Hoogenboom, noting that 29 cents a week amounts to more than $15 a year. David Blair calculated that the increase amounted to 22.4 percent, which, he said, "was not innocuous."

William Cherry, himself an engineer, said that the proposed sedimentation basin "couldn't possibly cost that much" and pointed out that the company does not say where the basin is to be built. "I think we are entitled to know more about the other capital improvements," he said.

Mr. Cherry objected as an individual to a recent petition from Elizabethtown to the Board of Public Utilities to take more water from the canal for 25 years beginning July 1 because he wanted to be sure that instrumentation to detect high-level toxic wastes was installed in the canal. As a Township Committee member, Mr. Cherry also wrote a letter, co-signed by Margaret Sprout of the Princeton Regional Health Commission and David T. Blake, Health Officer, asking the water company to install on-line detectors and warning alarms for high level toxics. Mr. Cherry is concerned that tighter federal and state regulations on toxic and carcinogenic industrial wastes could result in the illegal dumping of toxic chemicals into the Canal, which then could find their way into Princeton's drinking water before anyone was the wiser.

Mayor Hall, who has concerned herself with brown water at the tap in certain areas of the Township and who had met in May with Elizabethtown officials to try to correct the problem, said she hoped some of those capital improvements were for installing new lines and putting in loops to keep water circulating. Mrs. Hall was also alarmed about the increase in charges in hydrant water that were a part of the rate structure that accompanied the letter. "That's inexcusable," she said. "That water just sits there!"

Committee agreed to write the water company to find out when the public hearing is scheduled and to comment along the lines of the discussion. Committee also reviewed the 1978 audit report, including suggestions from the auditor on improvements in certain areas, and attended to a number of routine items.

In the work session, Mayor Hall announced the appointment of Marion Green (Mrs. Richard) of Rollingmead to the Joint Fire Commission. Committee also discussed the hazardous routes in bussing children to school, objecting to the fact that the administrative costs connected with these routes are assessed against the Township.

Death Cause Determined
An autopsy by Dr. Frank Campo, a pathologist in Trenton, showed that electric current was the cause of death of 18-year old Rachael Bull.

Police had refused to comment on the cause of death, pending the completion of laboratory and toxicology tests. Miss Bull's body bore small burn marks on either side, which police believed were caused when her accused murderer, David A. Logan, touched her with the bare ends of a live cord from a bedroom lamp.

Last week, Dennis Kuroishi was appointed Logan's public defender. The 26-year old Logan is being held in Mercer County Jail without bail.

A four and one-half foot dracaena plant, valued at $15, was stolen Saturday between 11:30 and 3 from the front porch of an Elm Road home, and a Spring Lake Heights resident lost $20 and her car keys when her pocketbook was rifled. She told police she had left it unattended in the Prince William Room at the Nassau Inn between 6:30 Saturday and 12:08 Sunday morning.

A one-foot toy racket was stolen from the car of a Pennington resident last week while it was parked in the underground garage at 22 Chambers Street.

The victim told police that the liquid fuel for the rocket can explode if not used properly. The rocket is red with black and white markings.

A 40-channel CB radio was stolen last week from a car parked overnight at a service station on Nassau Street. The owner, a Maple Street resident, told police the unit was valued at $119.

In the Township, a beer tap and refrigerator combination with a walnut case containing a half keg of beer was stolen from a large tent following a wedding reception on Leabrook Lane. It was valued at $225.

A Terhune Road resident lost $15 when his wallet was stolen last week from an unlocked locker in the men's locker room at the Community Park Pool.

$500 TV SET STOLEN
From Hibben Apartment. A color television set valued at $500 was stolen between 4:40 and 5 Saturday afternoon from a Hibben Apartment off Faculty Road.

Entry was gained, police said, by climbing a rear balcony and entering an open screen door. In addition to the TV set taken from the living room, a bedroom was ransacked and $10 stolen from a wallet. Police report the entry was discovered when the victim's son returned home.

A Tyson Lane home was entered last week through an unlocked kitchen window and ransacked but police report it appears nothing was taken. The entry took place between 9 a.m. and 3 in the afternoon.

Borough police report two campus entries. Taken from a student's unlocked room in Spelman Hall was a 35mm camera, a 200mm telephoto lens and filters and flash, with a combined value of $480.

Between noon and 5 Monday, someone entered a room in the Graduate College and took $40 cash and $20 change from a dresser top. Police said the door was locked and there were no signs of forced entry.

BIDS OPENED
For Borough Projects. Borough Council will meet this Wednesday night at 7:30. Among other items on the agenda was a review of bids opened Tuesday for work on the extension of Bainbridge Street and the development of Quarry Park.

The next regular meeting of Council will be Tuesday, July 10.

PLANNERS DELAYED
Try Again Monday. The Regional Planning Board, which failed to produce a quorum at its meeting this past Monday, will meet again this Monday in the staff center of the Valley Road Building. Pending before the board are three applications that had been scheduled to be heard at this week's meeting, plus two new applications, plus presentation of preliminary plans for two proposed developments on Stuart Road and the Great Road.

Next Monday's meeting may begin at 8 or it may be earlier, depending on how many of these matters the Board hopes to consider in one session. Another special session may have to be called to handle the backlog.

Among the new applications is Florence Kahn's proposal to convert an old church building on Birch Avenue into a medical office building. Parking requirements are expected to be discussed.

Albert Salzman's proposed subdivision on Stuart Road is now before the board. Residents of that area have expressed discontent with the size of the proposed lots and with the plans to extend Stuart Road. The other proposed development is a residential cluster planned by G.R.D. Associates on The Great Road East.

CHARGES LEVIED

Following 1-Hour Police Chase. What began as speeding ended in seven police charges last week against Mark A. Volk of Washington Crossing, Pa.

Volk, 20, has been charged by Township Ptl. David Funk with speeding, eluding a police officer, reckless driving, driving while on a revoked list, unregistered vehicle, possession of stolen plates and use of an uninsured motor vehicle. He was later released in $500 bail, pending his appearance July 19 in Township court.

Mr. Volk's troubles began when he was observed by Ptl. Funk traveling on North Harrison Street at a high rate of speed. A one-hour chase began.

It led over Hamilton, Chestnut and Nassau streets, out Washington Road to Route 1, where Mr. Volk was involved in an accident. He fled his disabled car and ran into a wooded area, heading toward Alexander Street.

Two West Windsor patrolmen, who had joined in the search, arrested him at Route 1 and Washington Road at 9:30, 67 minutes after the chase had begun.

Post Used as Missile. Twenty-year old Kenneth P. Roughgarden of 969 Alexander Road has been charged by police with malicious injury to property, after he allegedly hurled a wooden fence post through the windshield of a pickup truck.

Police report that the victim, a Skillman resident, was driving on Harrison Street near the south entrance to the Princeton Shopping Center at 12:20 Saturday morning when the incident occurred. The driver was not injured.

Mr. Roughgarden was later released to await his appearance in court here.

Miss Nosal, a physical education instructor, has also coached with the Soccer Association's girls' program and the Township's Pink Panther basketball program. Other activities will include daily swimming, bike trips, picking blueberries, walking tours to historical landmarks, day trips by van, making ice cream, dancing, films and crafts. Volunteer services for senior citizens will also be a part of the camp program.

5 JUVENILE SUSPECTS
In Firebombing. Five Princeton juveniles, 12 to 14, three from the Township and two from the Borough, are suspects in a firebombing last week at Littlebrook School.

Three were arrested following an investigation by Township Juvenile Officer Jerry Offredo and Ptl. William Potts. The investigation is continuing. Ptl. Offredo said, and charges against the five are pending.

Last Tuesday afternoon, a beer bottle filled with gasoline and a rag was ignited and hurled against a rear brick wall of the school. Some 45 minutes to an hour later, a larger "Molotov Cocktail," a quart soda bottle was hurled against the same wall where it exploded into billowing flames.

Police were called at 4:58 by a maintenance man. The maintenance department had extinguished the fire but called police to investigate, Ptl. Offredo reported, because of the evidence at the scene of the cause of the fire.

The fire blackened an area approximately 10 feet square. The bricks were scorched and the paint of a steel door was blistered.

Police were able to talk with some students who had seen youths running from the scene, Ptl. Offredo reported. "They thought it was a joke — until now," he added, commenting on the suspects.

Boom! Last Day at PHS. Several powerful M-80 firecrackers were set off at Princeton High School shortly before noon last week on the last day of school.

Police report that several windows in the school auditorium and music room were blown out and some music books destroyed. Two alarm systems in the hall near the auditorium were blown completely off the wall, Capt. Theodore Lewis said, when firecrackers were placed behind them and set off. Borough Juvenile Officer Douglas Watson is investigating.

DRIVER LOSES LICENSE
For Drunken Driving. Ernest T. Hoagland Jr., 226 Birch Avenue, had his license revoked for 120 days in Borough traffic court Monday for drunken driving. In addition, Judge Philip Car-chman fined him $210 and ordered him to attend an AA program.

Clifford N. Lazarus, 56 Herrontown Circle, was fined $35 and had his license revoked for 60 days for tampering with a motor vehicle. Paying fines of $30 each for careless driving were Kevin R. Hoffman, 3 Orchard Lane, Lawrenceville, and John C. Sapoch 3d, 4 Hawthorne Avenue.

Others: Ira J. Mowitz, 204 Dodge-Osborn Hall, Princeton University, $20, failure to observe a flashing traffic signal; Ruben W. Givens, 36 Franklin Road, Lawrenceville, $30, U-turn; Camille Q. Bradford, 148 Carter Road, $23, speeding; Alexander L. Wert, 6 Hodge Road, $15, no license or registration in possession; and Paulinus Chukwu, RD4, Princeton, $20, overdue inspection.

 Friday evening on the Westminster Choir College campus when a general alarm was sounded for a fire in the student basement center. Police said that the fire, which destroyed a pool table, "appeared to be of a suspicious nature." Firemen responding to the 9:48 alarm carried the table outside in pieces. Nothing else was damaged, police said.

ACTION ASKED
 On Borough Assessment Figures. Robert McChesney, Democratic candidate for mayor of Princeton Borough, called this week for prompt release of the new tax assessments in the Borough. "Every Borough taxpayer should have as much time as possible to prepare him or herself for the possibility of a higher tax bill," he said. Theoretically, he pointed out, a higher assessment need not mean higher taxes. In fact, it's possible that it could mean a lower tax bill.

The amount of tax money needed for the Borough, the County, and the schools remains more or less fixed and as assessments rise, the tax rate drops. But in reality a substantial number of people will face much higher bills.

"According to the rule of thumb in re-evaluation," he said, "one third of all tax bills go up, one-third go down, and one-third remain unchanged." If the Borough's total new assessments, for instance, are three times higher than the present ones, anyone whose assessment rises more than three times will pay a higher bill. And anyone whose assessment is less than three times will see a decrease in his or her tax bill.

What especially concerns Mr. McChesney, he said, is who will be paying the higher tax bills. "If my prediction is right," he said, "the west end of the Borough, where the most expensive houses are, will benefit from re-evaluation while more modest areas will be hit hard." The areas that will bear the brunt of re-evaluation, he believes, are the tree streets (Linden, Spruce, Maple, Pine, etc.) and Jugtown.

To illustrate his point, Mr. McChesney cited two cases — a Library Place house now assessed at $99,000 and a Linden Lane house now at $14,000. "Given the pattern of real estate sales — and the assessors must base their decisions on the market value — I would estimate," he said, "that the Library Place house will be re-assessed at about 2.5 times the current assessment while the Linden Lane house will go up at least four and perhaps five times. If that were the case, and the average increase for the Borough were three times the current assessments, then the Library Place owner would see his tax bill drop from $6,000 to $5,000 while the Linden Lane owner would see his rise by 50 percent, from $850 to $1,200-$1,400.

"If what I think is going to happen, does happen, it will have devastating consequences for taxpayers on fixed incomes for whom the major housing cost is taxes," he concluded.

WORKSHOP SET
For First, Second Graders. The Stony Brook-Millstone Watersheds Association is offering a workshop this summer for first and second graders entitled, "Fun with the Outdoors." The program is scheduled for July 23-July 27, from 9-noon at the Watershed property on Titus Mill Road in Hopewell Township.

The children will be involved in a variety of activities designed to stimulate their interest in the outdoors. Natural history will be stressed, but as a means of developing their imagination, creativity, verbal skills, and motor skills.

95,000 GRANT MADE

To Aid Mentally Handicapped. The Mercer County chapter of the Association for the Advancement of the Mentally Handicapped (AAMH) has been awarded a $95,000 grant by the N.J. Division of Mental Retardation to find homes in communities for 50 Mercer County residents currently living in three state institutions.

The placements will be made over a two-year period. One young man left Johnstone Training Center in Bordentown for his first apartment in Mercer County this week. The AAMH will follow up this housing placement and give support in employment, social activities, health care, money management and personal growth.

AAMH chapters in Somerset and Union counties will conduct parallel projects, all dubbed Project SPICE—for Supported Placements in Community Environments. The new contract with the state Division of Mental Retardation is a major expression of state support for the way AAMH works, according to Arthur Rittmaster of 114 Lambert Lane, founder of the Mercer County chapter.

It is also an important step in the state's drive to upgrade its care of mentally retarded and disabled people, according to state officials. That drive will bring federal aid into the state if it is successful.

According to Peter Trayers, executive director of the Mercer chapter, the AAMH has already had four years' experience in setting up a community "safety net" for mentally handicapped people striving to live on their own. The chapter has more than 250 persons on its rolls, mentally handicapped adults who rely on the group to help them find housing, friends, jobs and answers to the usual problems of everyday living, Mr. Trayers explains.

Continuing Support. Susan Haikalis, AAMH program director, adds that the 250 are scattered throughout the area. "We're not creating ghettos of mentally handicapped people," she said, "and we're always going to be here, providing support."

Newer county chapters are following the same approach, with hundreds of seriously handicapped people getting AAMH to help in "finding and keeping jobs, setting up bank accounts, learning to cook and shop—the same areas in which you and I want support," Ms. Haikalis pointed out.

Earlier state experience with the AAMH led to the current contract, according to Mr. Trayers. The group helped about 50 former Trenton Psychiatric Hospital patients move out to live on their own, under an earlier state contract. And hundreds of parents across the state have sought out the group to provide their mentally handicapped children with alternatives to institutions, he said.

The young man who this week moved from Johnstone Training Center to an apartment has been at Johnstone for six years. By gradual steps the AAMH has helped him get used to the complexities of living on his own, and the institution itself helped him find a job. He will have a roommate—another AAMH member who has been living on his own for more than 18 months, Mr. Trayers said.

Coming-out Party. Although he is the first Project SPICE participant, he was treated to the "coming-out party" that is a tradition for the AAMH. Staff members gathered at his new apartment with beer and pizza and toasts for a new life.

The Mercer AAMH was founded in 1975 by Mr. Rittmaster, whose son Scott is a mentally handicapped young man. It began its work with a staff of one and a budget of $150 and now has a staff of 23 and a budget of roughly $500,000 and has served more than 300 mentally handicapped citizens.

Both the AAMH and the state are looking for individuals or families willing to take in a mentally handicapped individual as part of the new program. Those interested may call Donna Kramer at 921-1570.

Support for Nuclear Power Declines, But Most See It Needed To Solve Nation's Energy Problems, State-Wide Survey Shows

New Jerseyans appear to be at an uneasy peace with nuclear power, according to an Eagleton poll conducted after the accident at Three Mile Island. The Rutgers-based survey found that while support for nuclear power has declined and people are concerned about the safety factor, most still see nuclear power as necessary for the country to meet its energy needs.

Interviews with the statewide sample of 1004 New Jerseyans found 48 per cent favoring increased use of nuclear power to help solve the nation's energy problems while 44 per cent opposed increased usage. Support for nuclear energy is down sharply from a September, 1978 Eagleton survey conducted for the New Jersey Department of Energy when increased use of nuclear power was favored by a margin of 60 to 29 per cent. A

January 1975 survey found increased use of nuclear energy favored by 74 to 15 per cent.

There was strong agreement among New Jerseyans--by 60 to 35 per cent--that nuclear power plants must continue to be built to meet energy needs. However, a majority--55 per cent--of Garden State residents also felt that "nuclear power plants should be shut down until all safety problems have been eliminated," while 42 per cent disagreed with this statement.

Associate Director of the Poll Cliff Zukin commented, "These figures reflect the uncomfortable position that many state residents find themselves in. They see a grave energy situation that can be eased by the development of nuclear power, but are concerned about the risks brought home by the Three Mile Island accident. The public seems to be saying 'go ahead with nuclear power--but move cautiously and safely.'"

New Jerseyans clearly feel that nuclear power is less safe than other forms of energy, but do not see it as so hazardous as to be prohibited. Only 35 per cent said nuclear power plants were "as safe as any other kind of power plant," while 59 per cent disagreed with this statement. However, by a margin of 74 to 20 per cent people disagreed with the statement that "nuclear power plants are so dangerous they should not be permitted."

Almost everyone polled said he had heard something about nuclear power in the last month. Sixty-seven per cent recalled hearing a "great deal," 18 per cent had heard "some," 11 per cent "a little" and four per cent said they had heard nothing within the last month.

Men felt the need to keep building nuclear power plants more so than did women (67 per cent of men and 54 per cent of women took this position); while women felt more strongly that nuclear power plants should be shut down until all safety problems had been solved. This position was taken by 65 per cent of the women and 44 per cent of the men interviewed.

People with more education were slightly more likely to support nuclear energy and less worried about nuclear safety than were people with less education. Forty-one per cent of those with some college background felt nuclear plants should be shut down until completely safe, compared to 58 per cent of those who had completed highschool and 62 per cent of those with less than a high school education.

A Visitor's Appreciation.

To the Editor of Town Topics:
I recently visited your town and I want to congratulate you for doing wonderful things with your Green Acres project. I come from the Netherlands and we have separated paths, one for bicycles, one for people, and one for cars and trucks.

It is good to see that a fine idea from my old country can be used in my new country, and I wish you all the best.

The best path of all goes on Mercer Street. I have often visited a friend on Mercer, but I never went out on the street to explore the nearby park. What pretty white poles!

If the path had not been there, I would not have seen this park. Next time I come to visit my friend, I will bring my roller skates.

To the Editor of Town Topics:
...A recent article by Barbara Johnson concerning Cesorean section groups organizing in this area and around the country shows the continued trend towards consumer awareness in medical practices. Ms. Johnson however, failed to do all her homework.

The proper spelling is Cesarean or Caesarean, not Caesarian.

FRASER LEWIS, M.D.
Editor's Note: Webster gives the first two spellings as preferred, the third as optional. Dr. Lewis's careful readership is appreciated.

Consolidation is Bureaucracy.

To the Editor of Town Topics:
Once again we are called upon for a decision as to consolidation of the Borough and Township. The effort this time is somewhat different because a more extensive study of the problem appears to have been made by more people than before.

The first question naturally is: What are the findings of the various studies? In the absence of systematic publication of such findings, we are compelled to react on the basis of information that has been made public as a result of the various conferences and hearings.

The main questions which should control the action to be taken are:

1. What economies and efficiencies might be brought about to confront the number one problem of the community, which is overtaxation of business and residents? The effort seems not to have turned up anything substantial in this respect. Certainly not enough to warrant turning to consolidation, which can only increase spending.

2. What should be done about the fact that 65 per cent of the property in Princeton Borough is tax exempt, and a lesser but substantial proportion in the Township?

3. Parking. How much and where?

4. What are the lessons of the consolidation of the schools, now that we have had to live with it for more than ten years? This question has not been faced.

5. What has been the experience in the State of New Jersey with respect to the consolidation of municipalities? Apparently, there have not been enough consolidations to bother about it.

Thus it appears that the main question boils down to whether there is one good reason for even going through a lot of additional motions. Apparently, the situation has not changed basically since the days of the two cases in the '60s. In each of these, whether Prof. Carpenter or Prof. Sly was the leader, it was concluded that not one good reason could be found for consolidation.

However, it does seem obvious now that if consolidation were attempted, there would be a substantial increase in the expenditures of the municipality. Therefore, there would be a further increase in the tax rate for business and residents.

Bureaucratizing, instead of developing the unexplored potential of intelligently prepared volunteer effort, certainly is not the way to go. The present gap between the schools and the community would soon be extended to a gap between the community and all the other parts of the government.

The schools were caught up in the nationwide drive of the labor union racket secretly to substitute union control of schools for school boards. Now the same racket is being extended to employees in other branches of local government.

Probably the best thing to do would be to conclude that a most comprehensive study of the situation has not turned up impressive evidence that might justify consolidation. Blue sky and rhetoric are not enough.

PROGRAM PLANNED
For Gifted Children. The Center for Intellectual Achievement will begin its second summer on July 2 at the Unitarian Church. The C.I.A. offers children of high intellectual ability and special talents two week in-depth programs in drama, chemistry, natural sciences, literature, art, photography and memory.

New this year are a program designed especially for five and six year olds called "Etcetera," and a class in private detective fiction for 10 to 14 year olds. For older children and teens, an advanced drama group will run throughout the summer.

Janet Levy of East Windsor is the founder and director. Mrs. Levy feels there is a great need for bright and talented children to come together with their peers to enjoy learnings and comraderie that go beyond everyday experiences. Computer Software Firms at Same Address Here Sue Each Other on Piracy and Slander Charges

The two firms share an address—Princeton Research Park, 1101 State Road. And they have a product in common—"software," instruction packages that allow businesses to program and use electronic computers.

But beneath all that camaraderie lurks a tale of intrigue and espionage, according to a lawsuit filed by one firm against the other.

To understand it you first need a scorecard. Applied Data Research is a Princeton-based firm which was founded in 1959, and has grown to about 400 employees. It had sales of about $22 million last year, and earnings of about $2.9 million. Sales this year are projected to reach about $30 million.

This fall the company expects to move into its gleaming new headquarters, also on Route 206, north of Route 518 in Montgomery Township. The company recently sold some software to its 10,000th customer.

Automatic Data Processing -- Network Services is a division of Automatic Data Processing in Clifton in northern New Jersey. The parent company has sales of more than $300 million. The Princeton sales office of Network Services currently has five people working out of the Reserach Park offices.

Two years ago one of Network Services' top program designers was a Pennington resident named Peter Labriola. In May, 1977, when that firm asked him to move out of the Princeton area, Mr. Labriola quit and took a similar position with Applied Data Research. He still works there today.

FML vs. Empire. According to the legal papers filed this spring by Network Services in New Jersey Superior Court,

Mr. Labriola had worked on a software package known as Financial Modeling Language (FML), a program to handle corporate payroll transactions, budgetary problems, and profit forecasts.

Then in January, 1978, the Network Services suit charges, Applied Data Research -- Mr. Labriola's new employer -- marketed a new software package called Empire. Empire can be used to handle many of the same tasks that FML can handle.

Therein lies the conflict. Network Services charges that Applied Data Research used confidential manuals, project papers, notes, and memoranda in developing its Data's lawyer said she had no idea when the current case would be settled.

The primary point of contention in the legal tussle will undoubtedly be what use, if any, Mr. Labriola made of his Network Services experience in helping develop the program at Applied Data Research.

Labriola's "Brainchild?" One source at Network Services was quoted as saying that FML was the "brainchild" of the Pennington resident. "But did he develop Empire from scratch or did he use our files?" this source asked. "Was his memory so good he could remember a complete file, up to and including the exact periods and commas Network Services had in its program?"

Mr. Labriola was reported to have no comments on the case. Other sources in the software industry told reporters that the Empire program differs in many ways from Network Services' FML. "Empire can be used on almost any computer -- IBM, Burroughs, Honeywell, General Electric. Network Services' system can only be used on Digital Equipment computers," said one consultant who identified herself as a former Network Services salesperson.

A Way of Life. Carol Cohen, counsel for Applied Data Research, said that lawsuits are not exactly uncommon in the software business. A year ago Applied Data sued Network Services on an unrelated matter.

A decade ago Applied Data sued International Business Machines, the giant of the computer industry. The two settled out of court, with the smaller firm receiving an estimated $2 million. Applied

In addition to lost profits, the suit by Network Services seeks punitive and compensatory damages from Applied Data Research. The suit also demands that Mr. Labriola pay back the money he earned while working at Network Services.

Mr. Labriola has joined Applied Data in the slander suit against Network Services. "They called him a thief," explained an Applied Data attorney.

Inadequate Garbage Collection Target Of Petition by Witherspoon Merchants

Responding to what he called "daily stench and unsanitary" conditions on the block of Witherspoon Street just off Nassau Street, Irv Urken of Urken Supply Company has been circulating a petition calling for the correction of "this public nuisance."

Mr. Urken, whose store is located in the middle of the block at No. 27, directed the petition to the Board of Health, the mayor, and Borough Council. The petition, which minces few words, reads:

"We, the undersigned register our strong objection to the daily stench and unsanitary condition of the upper block of Witherspoon Street caused by improper garbage collection and storage. The worsening of this condition of flowing vile effluent on the major shopping street of Princeton with outdoor dining and attractive stores is intolerable.

"Rather than correcting the condition, sand is being spread to keep people from slipping in the greasy offal. This condition has been brought to the attention of the Board of Health periodically over the last two years without improvement. We would like this public nuisance corrected without further delay."

station on Bayard Lane, did not pump Tuesday because it had run out. However, it applied for and received a little bit of "set-aside" from the state.

To get it, an employee said, they had to hand deliver a letter to Carteret. The eight percent allocation will help the station stay open for the remainder of this month.

If service station owners had to sum up their advice to motorists in one word, it would be "Patience." Give the odd-even a chance to work itself out," said Mr. Gianacaci.

time each day.

The Citgo Station in the Shopping Center opted to fill everybody's tank and as a result ran out on Friday and will not have gas again until July 2. Most stations were limiting motorists to between $5 and $10 to conserve their supply, although company-owned stations like Phillips 66 on Route 206 and Exxon near the Quaker Bridge Mall seemed to have all they wanted.

For comparison, the Station in Princeton was 30,000 gallons as opposed to 125,000 for the one near the Mall, according to a service station owner.

Alex Kinman, a graduate of Princeton High School, who was a standout in football and lacrosse, has graduated from Ithaca College, where he played a major role on the lacrosse team as it compiled a 10-3 record this spring.

Kinman ended with 52 goals and 77 points and ranks ninth in both categories among Ithaca's top ten career scorers. A midfielder, Kinman scored 18 goals his senior year, most of them from 30 feet out or longer.

It was as a faceoff specialist, however, that Kinman stood out in particular. This season, the 5-8, stocky master of the play won 44 of 54 faceoffs, including 19 of his last 22. With the aid of Kinman on the field, Ithaca earned eighth place ranking in Division II-III of the USILA and its second consecutive NCAA playoff berth this spring.

He is the son of Morris E. Kinman Jr. of Lawrenceville.

B. E. Bergesen Jr. of 140 Crestview Drive addressed the graduating class at Ellendale - Geneva High School in Ellendale, Minn., on May 25. Fifty years ago on May 25, 1929, Mr. Bergeson presided over the 1929 graduating class as superintendent of the Ellendale Public School.

Sandy Stratton, daughter of Mrs. Manfred Piper, 35 Marion Road West, was a member of the varsity lacrosse team this spring at the College of Wooster, Wooster, Ohio. A freshman and a four-year lacrosse letter winner at Princeton High School, she was second high scorer on the team with 19 goals.

Mary D. Trotman, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Trotman of 30 Lytle Street, has graduated from the World Airways Training Center from which she has obtained her wings. She earned a B.S. in business administration in 1974 from Delaware State College and has worked in insurance as a subrogation specialist for the last four years in Philadelphia. She is presently flying domestic and international routes.

J. Francois Lareuse, son of Mr. and Mrs. Jean L. Lareuse of 256 Shady Brook Lane, has earned a place on the Dean's List at St. Andrews Presbyterian College in Laurinberg, N.C., for the spring term. He has completed his sophomore year.

Christina C. Bacheider, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph E. Bacheider III of 226 Constitution Drive, was one of 24 sophomore women chosen to serve in the traditional daisy chain at the 115th commencement at Vassar College. She is a graduate of Princeton Day School.

Kendall S. Harmon of 35 Manning Lane achieved high honors in all of his courses during the second semester at Bowdoin College, Brunswick, Me. He has just completed his freshman year at Bowdoin, where he also earned a varsity letter for his participation on the men's tennis team.

Michael E. E. Mann, son of Mr. and Mrs. Walter V. E. Mann of 4571 Province Line Road, has enrolled in the Automotive Technology Program at Lincoln Technical Institute. A 1979 graduate of Princeton High School, he will receive training to prepare him for an entry-level position as an automotive mechanic.

Dr. and Mrs. Chesebro to Mark 50 Years
Of Marriage at Reception Here Saturday

Dr. and Mrs. Paul Chesebro of 170 Moore Street will celebrate their 50th wedding anniversary this Saturday with a reception in the assembly room of the Nassau Presbyterian Church to which friends and family are invited.

The couple was married June 29, 1929, in North Brookfield, Mass., the bride's hometown. Dr. Chesebro says that next to his 50-year marriage, the most enjoyable four years of his life were spent at Amherst College. His roommate and classmate was Howard Lane, now living in Princeton, who introduced him to his sister, Florence. The rest is the 50-year history of a close partnership.

Dr. Chesebro first came to Princeton in 1926 to do graduate work in chemistry. For 25 years, from 1951 to 1976, he was headmaster of the Hun School, where he had also taught and been assistant to John Hun, the founder, for four years. He also taught at Princeton High School for 11 years.

Currently, Dr. Chesebro has the title of member, international advisory council for William Sword and Co., where he is involved with the subsidiary companies, Foundation Managers, Inc., and Corporate Contributors, Inc. He also is active in the Chamber of Commerce of the Greater Princeton area, the Mercer County Heart Association, the Mercer County Special Service Board for the Handicapped and the Boychior School of Princeton.

Mrs. Chesebro is a graduate of Framingham State College in Massachusetts, and she also taught before her marriage. She played an active role as headmaster's wife and director of food services during the early years at the Hun School, and continues to be involved in her husband's activities, particularly the Heart Fund.

The couple's two daughters, Mrs. Richard E. Clinton of Houston and Mrs. William Sayre Jr. of Hockessin, Del., are coming with their husbands to celebrate the occasion, along with the three granddaughters and one grandson and two grandsons-in-law.

First Aid Unit's Plea for Municipal Funds To Go Before Governing Bodies Wednesday

A special joint meeting of Borough Council and Township Committee will be convened this Wednesday night at 9 in Borough Hall to discuss the final report of the Joint Committee of the First Aid and Rescue Squad.

The Joint Committee has unanimously recommended that the municipalities provide approximately $32,000 to cover the salaries of a daytime paramedic and an emergency technician (EMT), plus benefits and funding for someone to cover when one or both of these individuals is sick or on vacation. The committee also recommends that a Joint Public Safety Commission be formed, made up of representatives from the fire companies, police departments, the First Aid and Rescue Squad, Princeton Medical Center and the governing bodies.

It has been more than a year since Squad Captain Edwin J. Obert Jr. first approached Councilman Richard Woodbridge as a member of the Borough Public Safety Committee to alert him that the Squad, organized 40 years ago to come to the aid of people in emergencies, was itself in need of help. The Joint Committee was then formed, consisting of Mr. Woodbridge and Kate Litvak from Township Committee as co-chairmen; Bonnie Wagner and Pat Cherry as representatives from the Borough and Township; Mr. Obert and Squad President Mark Freda representing the Squad, and, as of April, John Kauffman and Dr. Richard Barach representing the Medical Center.

Progresia Noted. A series of eight public meetings has been held to discuss problems ranging from daytime manpower, dispatching and finances, to gasoline availability and snow removal. Progress was made on some matters. The Township has agreed to do dispatching for a nine-month trial period from its Police Department—the Squad and the Township both use CB equipment, the Borough does not.

The Township has also volunteered to plow the snow from the apron in front of the Squad garage on Harrison Street so that rescue vehicles can leave quickly in winter. The Borough Police has agreed to pay for its hot line to the Squad house on a 12-month trial basis. The Township has historically paid for its hot line.

PAID DAY-TIME COVERAGE ASKED: First Aid and Rescue Squad members, shown here in a drill using their advanced life-support system, are seeking funds from Princeton's two municipalities to meet the cost of a day-time paramedic and technician to improve response to calls during working hours.

A finance advisory committee under the chairmanship of Ralph "Doc" Lenhart and William L. Wilson has been formed to organize a special gifts campaign to raise money for a new ambulance and to replace the chassis of the lifemobile. Mr. Obert is optimistic that the community will continue to support the Squad's operating expenses and its capital needs on a voluntary basis without resorting to tax dollars.

The report notes, however, that all the neighboring squads receive contributions from their municipalities in amounts ranging from $5,000 to $20,000 per year. If the capital fund drive is not successful, it states, the Squad will have demonstrated to the municipalities that it can no longer rely totally on private funds and will need assistance, perhaps in the form of the purchase of capital equipment, "or face the prospect of having drastically curtailed daytime services from the Squad or no service at all."

Inadequate Response. Mr. Obert went to Mr. Woodbridge initially because as captain he was disturbed that during 1978 the Squad was not able to respond to 12 daytime calls and had to request assistance from neighboring squads. This year, there have been four "incidents" since June 13 in which there has been what Mr. Obert calls "a poor response or no response."

A request from a doctor to go to the aid of a man who had fallen off a ladder was answered by the Kingston Squad because no Princeton Squad member responded when the "tones" were put out by the Township police dispatcher. Another call involved a child on a bicycle injured in a collision with a car. One Squad member went to the Squad house and when no one else responded, went out on the call alone, against customary procedure, arriving 15 minutes after the incident. Fortunately, says Mr. Obert, it turned out not to be a serious accident.

At 4:50 on a recent weekday afternoon, a nine-months pregnant woman was pinned in an automobile after an accident at Cleveland Lane and Library Place. By the time Squad member Mark Freda left his job at the University and made his way to Harrison Street, Charlie Gentillan from the Shopping Center TV repair was already sitting in the Lifemobile waiting for someone else to show up. When they reached the scene of the accident, it became clear that the extraction equipment in the rescue truck was going to be necessary.

One man stayed with the victim while the other rode back in the police car—again through thickening rush hour traffic—to the Squad house to get the rescue truck. Enroute, they passed the truck driven by still another Squad member who had learned of the situation and had gone to get it. "It was a comedy of errors," lamented Mr. Obert, "and it took more than a half hour to get all the equipment needed to the scene."

In the Rachael Bull tragedy, former Squad Captain Dewitt Boice, trained in cardiopulmonary resuscitation, happened to be at Township Police when the call came and, with the police, was at the Bull house in 90 seconds. The Squad was able to respond with a paramedic and full advanced life support system within eight minutes. This is considered a good response, Mr. Obert said, but he thinks it could be cut in half if a paid paramedic was on duty at the Squad house during working hours.

Gasoline Availability. Another matter very much on Mr. Obert's mind is a reliable, 24-hour a day, in-town source of gasoline. In May, 1977, the Squad asked the Township if it could purchase gas from its pump at cost and was refused. This past April Mr. Woodbridge, at the suggestion of the Joint Committee, asked the Borough for gas, either free or at cost, and was refused.

There are state regulations that prohibit a municipality from selling gasoline to a non-municipal agency. Moreover, the Borough said it had just received notification from its supplier that it would be limited to 95 percent of its allocation the previous year.

Department of Energy has just issued a statement saying that all police, fire and emergency vehicles will be allowed 100 percent of their needs. Mr. Obert also thinks that the fact that the Squad has to certify itself annually to the municipality and, if the recommendation for funding of daytime personnel is approved, may be receiving municipal funds, should remove the Squad from the "non-municipal agency" category and make it possible to purchase gas at either the Borough or Township pump at cost.

Mr. Obert feels that this problem, along with the pervasive one of daytime coverage, will depend on pressure from the public. Clearly he and the Squad want to be able to respond in a manner keeping with the extensive training they have received and the sophisticated equipment they possess.

Country Music Festival Pleased About 7,000 But Gas Shortage Kept Thousands More Away

As most folks know, you can take the boy out of the country, but you can't take the country out of the boy. But as the Princeton Country Music Festival demonstrated this past Saturday, you can't even take the boy out of the country if you don't guarantee him gasoline for his vehicle.

On what probably was the worst day of the current gas crisis, a crowd of only 7,000 country music fans showed up at Palmer Stadium, to loft in the sunshine, drink a little beer, and listen to the likes of Roy Clark, the Oakridge Boys, Larry Gatlin, the Earl Scruggs Review, and other country music performers. The promoter estimated that another 3,000 bought tickets, at $10.50 apiece, and were unable to drive in to Princeton because of the gas shortage.

"As a cultural event, it was a total success," said Al Merron, chairman of the coordinating committee for the Princeton Chamber of Commerce, which sponsored the festival as a fund-raising event. "As a financial event, it was a failure. The gas shortage obviously killed it."

Financial flop or not, most everyone associated with the event would like to try it again next year. Mr. Merron, pointing out that the Chamber as a whole would have to decide whether or not it would sponsor such a program again, added that his personal feeling is positive: "I'd like to see us do it again," he said. "I'm not a country and western devotee but the music was good, the sound system was excellent, and the crowd was very well behaved. About 80 percent of the people sat on blankets in the infield. Kids were playing in the sand at the jumping pits. And way back toward the closed end of the stadium, there were frisbees flying back and forth. You've never seen such a placid crowd," said Mr. Merron.

"First Class Show." The Chamber may very well lose money on the affair, even though the promoter was assuming all risks of hiring the talent. "We did have local expenses," said Mr. Merron, "including insurance, parking fees, signs, local advertising. It's very possible we'll lose money. We'll know the extent of it after the smoke clears." The biggest loser was Marney Goodman, the promoter, a 34-year-old Fort Lee woman who also owns a small record company. "The gas killed us. We didn't reach the break-even point -- we weren't even close. I'll just have to start all over," she said.

"But we did have a first class show," she added. "Fans walked out afterward and told me what they saw was worth twice the price of their ticket. I wanted to bring country music to the northeast and I did, and nobody had a bad word to say about it."

Would she try it again at Princeton? "I hope to," the promoter replied. "Palmer Stadium was perfect. It was beautiful. I talked to the police and they were impressed with the crowd. The concessionaires sold beer and they had no troubles. It was just a group of easy going, warm and gentle people listening to their music."

Wednesday through Sunday evenings, July 4-8, at Kresge Auditorium on the Princeton campus.

The twin bill will open with Chaplin's "The Great Dictator." Made in 1940, it was Chaplin's first all-dialogue film, and also marked the final appearance of his famed tramp character. Chaplin himself plays a meek Jewish barber, who is an extension of the tramp and Adenoid Hynkle, a devastating caricature of Hitler, which was an audience sensation in the early 1940s. When Chaplin made "The Great Dictator," the United States had not yet entered World War II, and he received a great deal of pressure to halt the production from various groups. But Chaplin's intent was to demonstrate that laughter could be used as a potent weapon in times of war, and he was also aware of how much Hitler looked like his own universally recognized tramp character. The supporting cast includes Jack Oakie as the rival dictator Benito Mussolini, and Paulette Goddard.

John Huston's 1975 epic adventure, "The Man Who Would Be King," is based on Rudyard Kipling's tall-tale of courage, camaraderie, gallantry and greed set in 19th century India. Sean Connery and Michael Caine play a pair of old-fashioned adventurers and con artists who, following their discharge from the British army, decide to carve out their own kingdom in remote Kafiristan (now part of Afghanistan). Huston's film, hailed by critics as his best in years, was shot in wide-screen on location in Morocco, and as critics noted, "has just enough romantic nonsense to enchant the child in us all." Christopher Plummer is featured in the cast as Kipling himself, who, as a young newspaperman in India, participates in the beginning and end of the story.

On Wednesday, Thursday and Sunday evenings, "The Great Dictator" will be shown at 7:30, with "The Man Who Would Be King" following at 9:45. On Friday and Saturday evenings, the respective showtimes will be 8:00 and 10:15.

Summer Cinema 79's current attractions this Wednesday through Sunday are two contrasting film views of the world of tomorrow: Stanley Kubrick's "2001: A

12TH SEASON TO OPEN

With Simon Comedy. Summer Intime will open its 12th season Thursday with Neil Simon's Broadway hit, "Last of the Red Hot Lovers." As in past years, Summer Intime has brought together a repertory company comprised of both professional and student actors to bring the community a season of summer theatre.

Alan Langdon, former head of the acting department for undergraduate and graduate students at the University of Oklahoma, will direct "Last of the Red Hot Lovers." This past year Mr. Langdon directed "Romeo and Juliet" and his direction of "Vanities" in 1978 was honored in the regional finals at the National Theatre Festival. He also worked with the Oklahoma Theatre Center directing productions of "Seascape" by Edward Albee and "A Streetcar Named Desire" by Tennessee Williams.

The role of Barney Cashman will be played by John Whitesell, a recent graduate of New York City's Circle in the Square Theatre School. Last summer Mr. Whitesell worked at the Williamstown Theatre in Williamstown, Mass., where he was in charge of the apprentice program and directed "The Glass Menagerie." His list of acting credits include "Idiot's Delight," "Design for Living," "School for Scandal" and "A Month in the Country."

Mr. Whitesell directed an Off-Off Broadway production of "Night of the Tribades" by Per Olov Enquist and acted in the Circle in the Square productions of "Back County Crimes" and "A Dream Play." He is one of the three producers for Summer Intime this season and will be directing the theatre's next production, Agatha Christie's "Towards Zero."

Nancy Bleemer is Back. Nancy Bleemer, who will be remembered for her portrayal of Mollie Ralston in last summer's "The Mouse Trap," will return to play the role of Elaine in "Last of the Red Hot Lovers." While at Princeton, Miss Bleemer was an active member of the Triangle Club and had such roles as Shelley in "Moonchildren" and Velma in Leonard Melfi's "Bird-bath." She was the recipient of the 1978 Francis Le Moyne Page Theatre Award and has spent the past year studying at the Herbert Berghoff Studio in New York City.

TRIO TO PERFORM
At Choir College. A concert for flute, bassoon and piano will be played by the Millstone Trio on Thursday, June 28, at 8 in Bristol Chapel on the campus of Westminster Choir College. The public is invited to attend without charge.

Jayn Rosenfeld, flute, Randolph Haviland, bassoon, and Phyllis Alpert Lehrer, piano, will present works by Telemann, Mozart, Hummel, Poulenc, Saint-Saens, and Daniel Gregory Mason. Miss Rosenfeld will play Hummel's "Sonate for Flute and Piano" op. 168, and Mr. Haviland will play a Saint-Saens "Sonate for Bassoon and Piano." The other works were written or adapted for this combination of instruments.

Miss Rosenfeld was principal flute with the American Symphony under Leopold Stokowski, has played first flute with the Master Virtuosi of New York and appears regularly with Continuum Performers' Committee for 20th Century Music. A graduate of Radcliffe and Manhattan School of Music, she presently teaches at Princeton University and Westminster Choir College.

Mr. Haviland is a Harvard graduate who has performed with many ensembles in this state including the New Jersey Symphony and the Montclair Chamber Music Society. Out of state he has played with the Kalamazoo and Grand Rapids (Michigan) symphony orchestras, the National Orchestral Association in New York and performed both as an orchestra member and as soloist at the Spoleto Festival. Sales and repairs of bicycles have been brisk since the gasoline crunch began, and the sales volume for Mopeds has tripled.

Mopeds. Sleek mopeds by Motobecane, Puch and Tomos are fun to ride, save gas and money and are easy to park. The French Motobecane is shown in six models ranging in price from $429-$659; the sporty 50 VLX, painted midnight blue with multi-color trim, has a variable speed drive and is $659.

Puch, an Austrian moped, is also offered in a choice of six models from $399-$799 - the silver MKII, featuring automatic oil injection, is $799. Tomos' two speed moped has a kick start, $400 up.

Bikes. The incredible selection of bicycles includes the complete lines of Raleigh, Rosa, Motobecane, Peugeot and Fuji for youngsters aged four through adults. The ten-speed bike is the best seller with a versatility that includes long distance touring.

The three-speed bike is second in demand - a sturdy, capable, utility bike for short runs around town. The five-speed bike combines ease of riding with a wider seat and regular touring handlebars.

Jay Mironov, owner of Jay's Cycles, is the second largest Raleigh dealer in New Jersey. He highly recommends the Raleigh ten-speed Grand Prix, which has a light frame, quick-release wheels for easy removal and attractive styling in blue, silver or bronze, $225, and the ten-speed Raleigh Record in red, blue or black, with sun tour gears and center pull brakes, $179.95.

The Raleigh Sport, a three-speed bike, is completely made from parts designed by the Raleigh Company, ensuring superb performance; blue, brown or silver, $150. Raleigh's Rampar line includes a five-speed bike for $128.

The Ross Compact is an American-made bike with ten speeds, 26" wheels, a 17½" frame and an extra long 10" seat that will accommodate a growing young rider, $125. Fuji, a highly-rated Japanese bike with good components offers the twelve speed S10-S, $299.

The French Motobecane bikes noted for their skillful painting and conscientious workmanship include the ten-speed Mirage, a touring bike that will provide years of service with minimum upkeep, $209, and the ten-speed Super Mirage, a beautiful bike with high touring performance, $250. Peugeot, made in Europe, is the newest line of bikes at Jay's Cycles and is selling well.

The Motocross bike is the latest in biking excitement for youngsters 6 to 16. Made in bright colors by Peugeot, Fuji, Raleigh, Ross and Motobecane, it combines sports styling with a strong frame and 20" wheels with big knobby tires for all the hard-riding antics of that very active age group. Optional features are safety padding on crossbars and handlebars and classy mag wheels.

Accessories. Locks, cables and chains are important accessories and Jay's Cycles has a wide assortment of combination or keyed locks from $3.50 up, coil cables in colors to match the bikes, $3.99-$7.99, and sized chains. Citadel makes theft-proof locks with an insurance policy, $20-$25. Lighting systems include the battery-operated Wonder lights for front and rear and generator lights that are pedal powered.

Open wire baskets for front and rear and collapsible wire baskets are $4.99-$16.99. Other carriers are waterproof nylon Kangaroo bags in a variety of sizes and colors for every purpose, $6.99-$35. A rear rack with spring clip is $8.50. A selection of elite components such as crank sets, brakes, derailleurs, seat posts and leather or suede seats can be purchased to up-grade standard parts.

LEAVE HOME CARES

With House Sitters Inc. Homeowners can enjoy a peaceful vacation and a happy homecoming when they use the services of House Sitters Inc. Their house and premises will be inspected periodically and basic tasks performed to maintain the "lived-in" look that contributes to home security. Many extra services are available to meet the specific requirements of each customer and all are offered at reasonable prices.

House Sitters, Inc. was professionally organized by two young women, Eileen Helfand and Paula Kolson, who have had diversified experience in the business world. Homeowners themselves, with children and pets, they were aware of the many arrangements necessary when leaving a home and believed a responsible house sitting service would be welcomed. After months of discussion and planning, a personalized program was formulated to cover every aspect of home care for absentee householders.

Basic Services. Visual inspection of the exterior and interior of the house, physical checking of doors, windows, locks and utilities, watering house plants, collecting newspapers, mail, or other materials delivered, turning air conditioning or heating systems on or off and a 24 hour customer call-in service are all covered for $8.50 per day if you live within a 10 mile

A NEW SERVICE for vacationing homeowners is being offered by Paula Kolson (left) and Eileen Helfand, who operate House Sitters, Inc. Mail and newspapers will be collected, pets fed, lawns mowed and plants watered to give your home that "lived-in" look. House Sitters can also make your travel arrangements and ready the house for your return.

radius of House Sitters Inc.

There is an additional charge of 20 cents per mile beyond that area. A deposit of 30 per cent is requested if you will be gone a short time; 50 per cent for a longer period, with the remainder of the fee to be paid when you return.

Extra Services. A separate but moderate charge is made for each of the following services - rental of light and appliance timers, purchase of food for return of homeowner, snow removal, care and feeding of cats, caged pets and fish (no dogs), mowing lawn, watering lawn, watering shrubs, watering vegetable garden, starting and/or moving car or van and dusting and tidying the house.

Provisions for the maintenance of the swimming pool, checking the sump pump and other special needs can be arranged. Assistance with travel plans, delivery of tickets and even limousine service will be included if requested.

Initiating the Plan. Two House Sitters will visit a prospective customer's home to determine the services required and to become acquainted with the house. A formal check list and agreement form is then completed.

After the homeowner has departed, the two House Sitters will visit the home and perform the desired services on the days stipulated. The frequency of the visits depends on the customer's needs.

Your house will be in good hands as the personnel of House Sitters Inc. can be affirmed by the East Brunswick Police, The Rochelle Travel Service of Old Bridge and the many customers they have served. Their simple agreement form was drawn up by a lawyer for your protection and the check list, followed on each visit to a residence, is initiated by both

AFS STUDENTS COMING To Be Here Four Days.
Forty high school students from around the world will pay a four-day visit to Princeton next week. Due to arrive Monday, they will stay with families in the area and participate in a number of special events arranged by the Princeton Chapter of the American Field Service international student exchange organization.
The students are part of a group of more than 3,200 teenagers from all corners of the earth who are traveling across America on two week bus trips. The trips are part of the end-of-stay program for AFS foreign students who have spent the past year living with families and attending school in the United States. In all, 86 bus groups will travel to 250 communities.

Special events planned during the students' stay in Princeton include: arrival at Princeton High School at 8 p.m. Monday; a picnic for host families and students and an international talent show Tuesday; a tour of various sites, including RCA Labs and Princeton University Wednesday morning, a swimming party in the afternoon; a nature hike or afternoon at the shore Friday and departure at 7 a.m. Saturday.

AFS is a privately supported, non-profit international scholarship program. There are 2,600 volunteer chapters throughout the United States and 160,000 volunteers around the world providing teenagers opportunities to live in another environment to learn about another society and culture. Each year more than 6,500 AFS scholars live with host families, attend school and take part in community activities. Nearly 100,000 students have participated in AFS programs since 1947.

On July 10 and 11, bus groups will converge on Washington, D.C. and San Francisco where they will say good-bye to each other before boarding international charter flights home.

I BET YOU DIDN'T KNOW

Brought to You
by John Bernard

One of the most courageous stories in sports history is the story of Glenn Cunningham....When he was a youngster, Glenn's legs were badly burned in a fire....Because his legs were not strong enough to allow him to play sports with other boys, he tried to build up strength by running all by himself....He started slowly but, by constant running practice, was able to run farther and faster and faster....He kept at it, and by the time he was an adult he became the greatest mile runner in the world....Glenn Cunningham held the world's record for the mile in the 1930s--an amazing comeback for a boy whose legs were so weak as a youngster that other boys wouldn't play with him.

In big league baseball in this century, only 2 switch-hitters have ever won the batting title--Mickey Mantle and Pete Rose.

+++

I bet you didn't know...that mortgage insurance is very inexpensive life insurance.

Here's an oddity about a father-son combination in baseball....Maury Wills, in 1960, in his 2nd season as a major league player, had 50 stolen bases--and last year, his son, Bump Wills, was in his 2nd season in the majors, and he stole 50 bases.

CONTE'S, CORN LEAD

In Softball. With rival Sweet Jersey Corn idle, Conte's Bar scored a 13-5 win over the Zephyrs last week to take the lead in the Princeton Women's Softball League. Hard hitting by Laine Ivan and Carol Ann Mazzella accounted for seven runs, and Harriet Staub blasted a homer.

Koffee Kup, after two surprising early losses, continue its comeback, blasting P.I.T.S. 34-1. Cathy Rice (two homers) and Vernell Carr (triple, homer) each had six RBIs as the victors scored in every inning. Cheryl Spratt's three hits led P.I.T.S.

Andy's Angels celebrated their first win of the season, taking a 5-3 game from Ivy Inn. Amy Shillaber and Debbie Breithaupt led the Angels' attack.

The Pacers won an exciting 8-5 victory over Community Liquors, rallying from a 5-0 deficit to a 5-5 tie in the bottom of the sixth. With two on, Terry Dalton belted a drive into left and circled the bags for a home run.

In games played last week, Conte's and Sweet Jersey Corn each won their sixth straight. Conte's swamped Andy's Angels, 19-6, behind the hitting of Lucy Baruch, Claire Johnston and Kim Cromwell. Andy's Pam Bernsten had a triple.

Jersey Corn blanked the Pacers, 18-0, on the hitting of Susan Cohen, Bonnie Gutman, and Dee Pearce (homer, five RBIs). Judi Grisham, Lisa Yates and Barbara Rice (three homers) led the Kup to a 17-9 romp over the Zephyrs. Linus McHugh (homer, four RBIs) led the Zephyrs.

Winless P.I.T.S. zoomed to a seven-run lead in the first inning and at the end of six still held a 10-9 lead over Community Liquors. Then in the final inning -- disaster. Nine C.L. runners scored in a hitting blitz, featuring homers by Jeri Meyer and Gracy McEwen. The final score: 18-11.

Carol Beske, Carla Jones (two doubles) and Alyson Flournoy (triple), kept P.I.T.S. ahead in the early innings.

Shannon Grover homered and tripled in the Elks' win over Italian-American, as Torben Larson and Babu slammed triples. James Womack, Peter Guthrie and Geller also hit safely for Elks.

POST 76 LOSES LEAD

In American Legion Lead. Definitely the surprise team in the American Legion League, Princeton Post 76 surrendered its lead Saturday when it lost 7-0 to Trenton Post 93. Ewing Post 314 moved into first place with a 15-5 win over the Broad Street Park Browns to lead Princeton in league points, 14-13.

Princeton's nemesis was Trenton High flamethrower Joe Beczo. The THS senior stuck out 20 Post 76 batters, fanning everyone in the lineup at least once and getting slugger Al Kandell four times.

Beczo, who won his third without a loss, has an ERA of 0.69. In 26 innings, he has allowed just 14 hits and fanned 49. Kandell took the loss, his first against one win.

Post 76 (6-2-1) threatened twice. In the second, it loaded the bases with one out but Beczo made Dave Reed one of his 20 strikeout victims and then got Bob Easton, the Hopewell Valley High standout, to ground out.

In the fifth, Beczo lost his control and loaded the bases with walks. Just as quickly, he regained it and struck out the side. He scattered six hits throughout the contest, yielding singles to Kandell, Keith Greener, Mark Adams, Jeff Lechowitz, Brent Robinson and Jeff Millington.

The previous day, Post 76 had won its sixth game, defeating Hopewell Post 339 as Scott Wever and Jon Luse combined for a two-hitter, Weber (2-0) getting the win.

Post 76 scored its first run in the second when Greener walked, advanced on a single by Keith Phox and came home on a fielder's choice. Adams, who had two of Princeton's five hits, tripled in the fourth when the victors sent two runs across. Nelson Velez took the loss for Hopewell, which dropped its seventh in eight starts.

Game Tied at 3. In the only tie in the League this season, Post 76 and Bordentown Post 26 battled to a 3-3 tie Thursday in Princeton in a game called after eight innings for darkness.

Princeton scored all its runs in the first. Reed and Easton, the first two batters, greeted Bordentown hurler Fritz Beisert with singles. Al Kandell's double scored both and two outs later, Kandell scored on Lechowitz's grounder up the middle.

Through the first seven innings, Post 76 pitcher Keith Phox was in complete control. He scattered five hits and did not issue a single pass.

With one down in the eighth, Phox hit rightfielder Mike Fassi. Brian Lynch and Craig Townsend followed with singles, scoring one run. Larry Burr, pinch hitting, singled to center to load the bases.

Post 76 skipper Pete Millington called on Luse to replace the tiring Phox. Then in a game of inches, Bordentown's Mickey Nucera greeted Luse with a fly ball that carried over the infield and fell just inches in front of Kandell charging in from left field. It scored two runs to tie the game.

Millington said later that he was satisfied with the tie and one point as opposed to a two-point win. By week's end, however, that one point has cost Post 76 its league lead.

BLANKED AGAIN

Post 76 Bows, 12-0. For the second day in a row, Princeton Post 76 was the victim of a shutout when it lost 12-0 to Hamilton Post 31 on Sunday.

Post 76, starting to stumble after an impressive start in the American Legion league, managed only five hits off Hamilton hurler Brian Binns — two by designated hitter John Flood.

Hamilton scored all it needed with three runs in the first, as centerfielder Dave Gallagher led an 11-hit attack going 3-for-3 and driving four runs across. Jon Luse (3-2) of Post 76 suffered the loss.

Playing at 10, Sweeney gave 10 strokes to Thompson and 14 to Myers, but managed to carry the match to the 16th

Roma in 6th NBA Round

Bob Roma, the 6-8 Princeton basketball player who saw action as center and forward with the Tigers during the past three years, was drafted Monday in the sixth round by the Kansas City Kings. In February last winter, he joined the 1,000-Point Club here, finishing with 1,076.

Roma was one of the six Ivy League players to go in the first nine rounds. The top choice was Tony Price, Penn's standout forward and the league's most valuable player. He went to the Detroit Pistons in the second round.

Others selected were Price's teammate, Bobby Willis; two Columbia players, Ricky Free and Alton Bird, and Gleen Fine of Harvard. All but Roma (who is currently in Italy for tryouts in pro basketball there) and Price are guards.

Norm Lewis Qualifies for N.J. Open

Norm Lewis, 73 Wilson Road, listened to the sage advice of his caddie Monday and shot a four over par 75 to qualify for the New Jersey Open to be played next month in Ridgewood.

Carrying Lewis' bag was none other than Jimmy McCarthy, 44 Morgan Place, no stranger to tournament competition, himself. Playing at Deal, Lewis began using his driver off the tee, but after the third hole, when he came within four inches of hitting his tee shot out of bounds, he took McCarthy's advice and drove with his three wood thereafter.

Lewis had one birdie, 14 pars, three bogeys and one double bogey on his card, rolling in a 25-foot putt on the 17th for his birdie. His 75 was only two shots off the best score of the day, posted by pro Scott Yager, and the second best score among amateur golfers.

A June graduate of Princeton High School, Lewis has played at Springdale Golf Club for several years. The son of Dr. and Mrs. S. R. Lewis, he will attend Ohio Wesleyan in the fall.
